From the Chairman

Through exciting exhibitions, expanded partnerships, and innovative programming, the Rehoboth Art League continues to reach new audiences in southern Delaware.

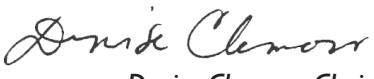

Our exhibition opportunities continue to draw interest from artists locally and across the country, and a robust year of shows included Dane Tilghman's exploration of rural African American lives while Aaron Augenblick's multi-media exhibition looked back at a career of animation. Tim Barton's intricate constructions examined issues of identity as the Delaware Watercolor Society's show presented their top aqueous works. Collections exhibitions included invited floral designers and asked them to create floral responses pieces to selected paintings from our Fine Art Collection. Each show of 2025 was unique.

We continue to deepen our partnerships with local organizations and were excited to pursue another pop-up exhibition with the Developing Artist Collaboration at the Shorebreak Lodge, which highlighted our member artists. And through our partnership with Sussex County Habitat for Humanity, the art league donated ten original pieces of art to new homeowners in 2025, helping to commemorate their journey to homeownership. Finally, the year marked an investment in collaboration with the Biggs Museum as RAL helped coordinate the Partnership of Art Leagues (PALs) program, networking art leagues and guilds around Delaware to share information among organizations at varied stages of development.

Summers remain a highlight on our campus, with longtime events being a standout. Our longest running summer fundraiser, the Cottage Tour, marked its 75th anniversary in 2025 with an incredible collection of homes, including a transformed Peter Marsh Homestead, which acts as a Showhouse for local designers. The August Outdoor Show set new records, with more than 9,000 attendees over the course two weekends. Bus Trips convened RAL groups to travel to the Delaware Art Museum, with a special tour of their Jazz Age Illustration exhibition, and to the National Gallery of Art to enjoy a showing of the work of African American printmaker Elizabeth Catlett. On-campus activities such as our Native Plant Sale engage nature lovers for a day of education and environmental stewardship while our yoga class in the gallery highlighted arts engagement as a pillar of overall wellness.

Educational opportunities remain popular and continue to expand in new areas. With more than 200 classes offered annually in mediums including pastel, oil and acrylic painting, ceramics, mosaic, fiber art, and even art history lectures, there are options for every level of artist to learn. Children can explore classes year-round but take over the campus with popular summer camps. And our off-campus Visual Arts Outreach program continues to draw interest from groups interested in creative experiences. Our work with CHEER centers around Sussex County expanded to include Ocean View, Roxanna and Georgetown, which hosts a bilingual adult program.

Finally, our membership program remains central to all our programs, and we ended the year with 1,440 members, including nearly 650 who sold artwork in our galleries. Thanks to our membership program and all the programs we undertook in 2025, our operations remain financially sound and have positioned us for long-term success. We are grateful to the incredible group of artists, members, donors, volunteers, staff, and visitors who allow us to inspire the community to embrace the lifelong value of art.

SIGNIFICANT FINANCIAL EVENTS

The Rehoboth Art League continues to build momentum with a mixture of beloved traditional programs and innovative new approaches to community-building. Our galleries hosted the work of popular local artists such as Dane Tilghman and Martha Spak, while also welcoming artists from afar, including places like New York and Massachusetts. With varied themes for shows, we were able to present painted porcelain and abstract landscapes, largescale photographs and traditional oil paintings. Longtime summer favorites rounded out the season with exhibitions that invite every Rehoboth Art League member's participation. With this, our gallery sales grew by 14% from the year prior.

Our popular summer events, including the Rehoboth Beach Arts Festival, Cottage Tour and signature Outdoor Fine Art and Fine Craft Show, and newer offerings such as local pop-up exhibitions and bus trips drew the participation of more than 15,000 constituents. Our well-trafficked events saw increased sponsorship from local businesses by nearly 30% from the previous year, reaffirming the high level of artistry that our nonprofit presents

Educational offerings remain a cornerstone of our mission, and we present more than 200 classes to the community each year. From pottery to painting and from jewelry making to flower arranging, our class schedule offers opportunities to the first-time artist as well as the professional, practicing artist. Our summer camps, which open in January to members, routinely sell out, and we compliment classes and workshops with our Open Studios for members, allowing them to refine their artistry in a self-directed but supportive group environment. All these activities and more contribute to a well-diversified revenue base for our operations, which allowed us to end 2025 without a deficit.

The Rehoboth Art League's annual financial audit for 2025 has been finalized. The process confirms that our internal control mechanisms are compliant and transparent, and that RAL's financial record-keeping is in accordance with accepted accounting principles. As a reminder, financial statements of recognized nonprofits (Form 990), including the Rehoboth Art League, are made available to the public.
